

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a method for intermediating trading between a building materials manufacturer and a fabrication factory, order received information is received from a construction company, a fabrication factory satisfying requirements of the order received information is retrieved from a storing part storing fabrication ability information of the fabrication factory. And based on the order received information, fabrication order information is sent to the fabrication factory and building materials order information including information of the fabrication factory, that is a destination to ship building materials from a building materials manufacturer, is sent.